In 2016, the Quality of Mercy Project—a series of community partnerships built around our capstone production Dead Man Walking—increased audience, provided fundraising opportunities, and inspired a burgeoning commitment to Applied Theatre methodologies. Applied Theatre inspires social change by engaging marginalized groups. It utilizes performance, allowing audience and participants to bear witness to the experiences of those who might otherwise be silenced, misrepresented, or overlooked.

Piven has a long history of utilizing Applied Theatre by working for over twenty years with developmentally delayed adults and youth, and with under-resourced youth in Chicago’s West Side. However, until 2016 we never fully embraced themes of social justice in our seasons. In 2017, we now facilitate full programming in the Women’s Jail at Cook County, we’ve expanded our scholarship program to include youth with the Art of Evolution Theatre, (a company devoted to exposing youth of color to theatre,) and are in the early stages of developing workshops with domestic violence victims in Evanston.

In 2018, our plans are even more ambitious. We will explore the concept of “home” as it applies to Evanston residents and organizations. Topics and related partners include those who work with immigrant populations and those who struggle to provide or obtain affordable housing, and those who work against violence in Evanston. Our initial partner is “Deer Evanston,” an activist initiative whose goal is to amplify the voices of Evanston residents. We have engaged an expert Piven Alum with an undergraduate degree in Applied Theatre to coordinate the programming.
